\Data communications and networking

Data communications and networking may be the fastest growing technologies in our culture today .
One of the ramifications of that growth is a dramatic increase in the number of profession where an understanding of these technologies is essential for success –and a proportionate increased in the number and types of student taking cources to learn about them . Today, student wanting to understand the concept and mechanisms underlying telecommunications and