Unlike the cities the village is full of greenery, farmland is full of crops and farmers are busy in their fields. As you know that I lived at Passu village. It is my hometown. It is one of the wonderful places. There are couple of places that you can visit once you are here and a lot of historical places. In fact, it is very beautiful, neat and clear. There is not a big shop but you can be able to access the different products. The climate is pleasant. Unlike the cities, the village is full of greenery, farmland is full of crops and farmers are busy in their fields, trying to produce more and more crops to be able to feed more and more people. There is no scarcity of pure milk and fresh vegetables. People are friendly and very much concerned with each other. I send you a lot of pictures of Passu. Hope to see you here someday. Pay my respects to uncle and aunt.

Yours friend,
Laiba.
