1. Lawmakers might argue that they were creating a more pluralistic society by banning all forms of religious expression in public places, whereas detractors might argue that the ban does just the opposite. Which side do you agree with, and why?

Ans: I am mainly with the detractors because they're right about it. Everyone has the right to live their life according to the way they want. If they want to wear a burka and follow their religion if someone wants to wear a cross it's all their choice and no one has the right to judge anyone. I would have agreed with the lawmakers if they had passed a bill that said if someone doesn't want to wear a burka and they're being forced by a family member or anyone else then the person forcing would be sent to prison but if you're stopping someone who wants to cover their face and follow their religion and beliefs or even if it makes them feel comfortable wearing a burka. You're not promoting freedom you're changing the way how people want to live their life and it's not freedom!

2. Should all religious practices be tolerated in a free society? Are there limits to what you think should be allowed? Explain your reasoning.

Ans : Yes, All religious practices should be tolerated in a free society unless and until it's doing any kind of harm to others in a way that if someone worships the devil or does worse things like black magic then these kinds of things are set to be inappropriate. Other than that if someone wants to pray in a mosque, church or a temple they're free to do their thing and no one should be treated differently because we're all human beings. every single life in this world matters and it's their choice how they chose to live it not the lawmakers or anyone else.

3. Do you think your home country should implement a ban on face coverings in public? Why or why not?

Ans: No, My country should never implement something like that and neither would they ever do something like that because it is an islamic state and we can hide or show our face it's all upto us. The reason why it shouldn't put a ban is because the majority of the population are muslims and other than that everyone should have the freedom to live their life according the way they want and they are. I personally think there's no harm in hiding or showing my face but if someone wants to hide their face and makes them feel then no one should stop them.
